

Co-Teaching Professional Network Forums

2011-
2012

Orange County Co-Teachers Professional Network

Are you:

- Interested in learning more co-teaching strategies?
- Curious about how other co-teachers are making it work?
- Preparing to co-teach or experienced in co-teaching?

Please attend and join the first ever:

Orange County Co-Teachers Professional Network and Forums.

These professional networks and forums will be offered through the Orange County Department of Education at no charge.

Each forum will include training, sharing, and exploring the following:

- ✓ Models of co-teaching, selecting the most appropriate co-teaching models, the co-teaching relationship, grading practices in co-teaching, next steps in co-teaching, case studies, content specific examples, article/video/research discussion, and topics based on co-teacher feedback.
- ✓ Sharing of best practices, effective lessons participants have planned and delivered, concerns, and solutions
- ✓ Facilitated planning time with presenter feedback
- ✓ Agenda request items for next forum

Purpose of the forums:

The network forums provide co-teachers with the resources, support via facilitated discussion and planning, and their own local professional network to improve their co-teaching relationship and increase their instructional intensity to maximize student learning.

Forums will include topics below and will also be tailored to the concerns and needs of the co-teaching network. Ideally, co-teachers will attend with their co-teaching partner.
